Jeannine grew up in Toronto, Ontario and moved to Chilliwack in 1990, where she was hired by a local accounting firm, Edmondson Roper. In 1997, she left public practice to become a full-time mom to her two children, Zackary and Calise. In 2005 she returned to public practice taking a position with MNP LLP at their Chilliwack office. As a partner with MNP's Professionals team, Jeannine works one-on-one with physicians, lawyers, engineers, veterinarians, optometrists and other professionals, as well as with owner-managers of small businesses in a diverse range of industries. She also works with estates, assisting her clients with tax advice and compliance. Feeling it's important to give back to the community she lives and works in, Jeannine has taken on volunteer Board roles in the past. These include the Chilliwack Hospice Society (treasurer and president) as well the Chilliwack Society of Community Living (treasurer) and now the Chilliwack Hospital Foundation Board in 2021. Jeannine and her husband enjoy golfing, skiing and travel in their spare time.

Through a co-worker/board member, she heard about the work the Foundation does to support CGH along with the community it serves and from there became interested in being involved with the Chilliwack Foundation Board. Her favourite part of being involved is knowing the work being done and the funds raised by the Foundation will have a direct, positive impact on CGH and our community. "In essence, we're helping to make our community better. It's important to ensure the funds being raised for CGH are going to where they are needed most, and the Foundation does that; helping to improve healthcare at the local level."
